EXPLANATORY NOTE

The total population of Cavite escalate rapidly from 1.6 million in 1995, to 2.06 million in 2000 and to 2.8 million in 2007. In the interest of proper representation of its people, Republic Act No. 9727 was passed reapportioning the Province of Cavite into seven (7) legislative districts. As Cavite maintains its attractiveness for investments in different business sectors, more and more people continue to migrate and make the Province their place of residence.

The effect of urbanization in several key municipalities of the Province has created a lot of opportunities for local government units as well as difficulties in the administration of justice. With the enhancement of economic and commercial activities in the province, the disputes arising out of or in connection with different commercial activities have also risen as well.

The effects of these can be seen in the rising number of criminal and civil cases being filed in various trial courts all over the Province. The number of disposed cases will always be lower than the number of cases being filed everyday in different trial courts no matter how efficient the Presiding Judge may be. In such instances, the cases being filed are most often overwhelming.

Hence, in order to hasten the administration of justice and to declog the dockets of numerous trial courts in different municipalities and cities in the Province of Cavite, there must be a corresponding increase in the number of first and second level trial courts. Failure to increase the number of trial courts in the Province will result in the ineffective and inefficient administration of justice and the corresponding decline in the confidence and trustworthiness of Caviteños in our courts of law.

Therefore, passage of this important legislation is earnestly sought.

RAMON BONG REVILLA, JR.
