OF THE PHILIPPINES)

S. No. 2878

RECEIVED BY

Introduced by Senator Ralph G. Recto

Explanatory Note

In 2004, members of the 13th Congress enacted Republic Act No. 9337 or the law that expanded the value-added taxation system in the country. This piece of legislation increased the VAT to 12% and expanded the tax base to include fuel, electricity and the transport industries, among others.

From its deliberation in Congress and up to its eventual enactment and implementation, RA 9337 appears to be one of the most heavily-debated tax measures ever to have been brought to the halls of Congress and before the bar of public opinion.

There was strong opposition to the measure as it was seen to be an additional burden to the general public. However, its proponents believed that it was necessary to enact such a law owing to the prevailing economic conditions at that time.

The tax measure is one of the recommended solutions to address a looming fiscal crisis brought about by an unprecedented increase in national debt.

In 2004, the country's debt-to-GDP ratio was at 78.2%, a record high. Debt service, including principal and interest payments, was equivalent to 86.1% of government revenues, while infrastructure and other capital expenditures were only 10.87% of government expenditures for the same year.

The country's total foreign borrowing was over P3 trillion while foreign reserves fell. It was also at this time when the country was receiving downgrades in credit ratings from international credit rating agencies due to the deterioration in public finances.

To arrest the downward spiral of the national government finances, drastic measures need to be implemented to increase revenues. One such measure is the enactment of RA 9337, which has generated more funds for infrastructure and social services and allowed the government to cut down on borrowings for its projects since 2004.

However, the prevailing conditions in 2004 no longer exist today and an amendment to RA 9337 should be in order.

This bill seeks to authorize the President of the Republic of the Philippines to reduce the VAT rate from 12% to 10% if the national debt as a percentage of GDP of the previous year does not exceed fifty-six percent (56%). The author believes that nearly seven years after the enactment of RA 9337, the VAT rate can be reduced to 10% in order to unburden the general public as the existing conditions when the law was passed are no longer present at this time.

In 2010, the debt-to- GDP ratio fell to 55.4%, the lowest since 1998 when the ratio was at 53.3% and a far cry from the 78.2% in 2004. The Aquino administration said it is committed to cutting the debt-to-GDP ratio to 46% in 2016. Also, forecasts of international financial institutions indicate that the peso will strengthen this year.

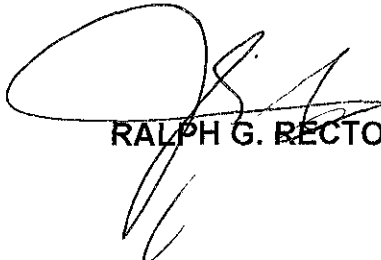

The reduction of the VAT rate from 12% to 10% therefore would be a welcome relief for the general public now burdened with high prices of commodities brought about by the continuing volatility of crude oil prices in the world market.

It would also put more money in the pockets of our fellow Filipinos who are facing the prospect of high inflation rates next year. Nomura International (HK) Ltd. sees an increase in inflation rate in the Philippines, peaking to a high of 15.4 percent in the second quarter of next year.

The bill also seeks to amend Sec. 109 of the Tax Code by increasing the thresholds for VAT exemption stated in paragraphs (P), (Q) and (V) for sale of real properties not primarily held for sale or lease in the ordinary course of trade or business, real property utilized for low-cost and socialized housing, and residential lot from P1.5 million to P2 million; lease of residential unit with monthly rental from P10,000 to P13,000; and other sale or lease of goods or properties or performance of services from P1.5 million to P3 million based on the updated Consumer Price Index, as published by the National Statistics Office (NSO).

It likewise seeks to amend Sec. 236 by increasing the threshold for non-VAT taxpayers from P1.5 million to P3 million to enable small entrepreneurs to grow before being made subject to the ambit of VAT. The author believes that this would greatly benefit micro enterprises, which comprise over 90% of all business enterprises in the country. This is also envisioned to encourage the establishment of more micro enterprises by exempting them from the coverage of VAT and thus lead to the creation of more jobs, as government data show that these business vehicles promote employment. As of 2009, micro enterprises generated a total of 1,731,082 jobs, according to the Department of Trade and Industry.

In view of the foregoing, the passage of this measure is sincerely sought.
