EXPLANATORY NOTE

The Constitution, Article 14, Section 1 provides:

"The State shall protect and promote the right of all citizens to quality education at all levels and shall take appropriate steps to make such education accessible to all."

Reading is a fundamental skill for learning. Students who are not reading at grade-level are very unlikely to graduate from high school, while those who do are likely to succeed in life.

Parents are the best first teachers. Parents can help to increase their children's reading levels for example, by reading with their child thirty minutes a day. Evidence shows that greater parental support of children's literacy success makes a significant difference. One-on-one tutoring is a key component of bringing students up to reading at grade-level.

Family involvement is widely recognized to improve student performance. Preparing children to learn, through parent involvement plays a crucial role in preventing students from falling behind.

With proper support and teaching, all children can learn to read at grade-level by the end of the third grade. The purpose of this bill is to support effective programs that provide assistance to parents who want to help their children become successful readers.
