SENATE
S. No. 213

Introduced by Senator S. R. Osmeña III

EXPLANATORY NOTE

With the leaps and bounds in transportation and communication technologies, the world has been reduced to a global village where capital has become as footloose as labor in seeking economic opportunities.

Foreign Direct Investment (FDI) have served as an important external stimulus to the Philippine economy, generating additional employment and economic activity amid the relative scarcity of domestic capital resources. In trying to capture foreign investments, the Philippines has to compete with other countries in Asia and Eastern Europe who offer more liberal incentives, more efficient infrastructure systems, and more vibrant markets.

One of the disadvantages that hinder the Philippines' drive to attract foreign investments is the prohibition against the ownership by foreign nationals of fixed assets and real property including lands and buildings.

This bill proposes an amendment to R.A. 4726, otherwise known as the "Condominium Law" to include industrial estates within the definition of a condominium. When a foreign investor invests in the stocks of a condominium corporation, he acquires ownership rights over the condominium system, which gives him a more stable asset base which can be used for financial leveraging and other purposes.

Recent irreversible global developments have changed the international economic backdrop amid which Filipino businesses have to operate. A paradigm shift is in order for the Philippine economy to cope with the rest of the world, discarding the parochial and autarkic values in favor of more open outlook that will allow our businessmen to take advantage of the emerging opportunities in the global economy. Short of a Constitutional amendment that would achieve this effect, this bill addresses the need to realign our policies in order to be at par with other countries vying to offer investment venues to the world's capital resources.

In view of the foregoing, early passage of this bill is earnestly requested.

SERGIO OSMEÑA III
Senator
