EXPLANATORY NOTE

The Constitution, Article 2, Section 14 provides:

Section 14. The State recognizes the role of women in nation-building, and shall ensure the fundamental equality before the law of men and women.

Women play multiple and vital roles in economic development, but in many developmental activities, their roles have been overlooked, ignored or displaced.

The full participation of women in, and the full contribution of women to, the development process are essential to achieving growth, amore equitable distribution of resources and services to meet basic needs, a higher quality of life and sustainable development.

In food production, for instance, low-resource women farmers provide the critical labor and offer the best hope for increasing food supplies. With access to appropriate extension, credit, and marketing services, they can do much more.

Women are also a major source of entrepreneurial talent in the informal sectors and, with access to training and credit, and other forms of assistance, are expected to account for much of the growth in the private sector employment.

The failure to effectively integrate women in development activities retards achievement of development goals. Hence, this bill seeks to promote the integration of women in the development process.
