SENATE s. b. no. 1536

EXPLANATORY NOTE

This bill seeks to grant disabled persons the right to live free from verbal and non-verbal ridicule and vilification in any form from any individual, group of persons, or community.

Every man in this world is free to live without the burdens of ridicule, contempt, and discrimination. It is a common prerogative. Disabled persons, comprising one of the most marginalized groups in our society, are the most sensitive and susceptible with regards to this. Having to live with the cumber of physical, mental, or psychological impairments, they should be given security that they, like every man in this world should have, would be protected from these malignant acts to further preserve and augment their morale and self-esteem.

With all of this provisions and laws, Republic Act No. 7277, otherwise known as the Magna Carta for Disabled Persons, has served its purpose to uphold the welfare of the disable. They now enjoy various benefits and privileges. However, there are still policies to be done that will further ensure their well-being against the criticizing public.

In view of the foregoing, early approval of this bill is highly recommended.
