EXPLANATORY NOTE

It is the policy of the State to protect and conserve its valuable water resources. Thus, the government has the fundamental duty of ensuring adequate and safe water supply for domestic, agricultural, industrial, and other needs of the country.

Because of the threatened depletion of our resources caused by a burgeoning population, greater exploitative activity and higher industrialization, government must renew and improve its efforts to prevent this cycle. A growing general awareness among the people has likewise prompted vigilant environmental groups and concerned individuals to seek stronger and more effective intervention by the government for improved management as well as rationalized use of these resources.

Republic Act 7586, or the "National Integrated Protected Areas System (NIPAS) Act of 1992" recognized the immense importance of watersheds and other areas classified as protected areas in the maintenance of a healthy environment. The law underscored the urgent need to protect and conserve these areas by placing them under the administration and management of the NIPAS. However, the definition and provision of penalties for specific destructive activities within these areas must be addressed by further legislation.

This proposed bill focuses on one such major destructive activity by defining the offense of illegal logging within protected areas and providing penalties for its commission. The early enactment of this bill is sought to ensure proper protection, conservation and development of our valuable water resources for the benefit of our people and of future generations.
