S. No. 1476

EXPLANATORY NOTE

Public office is a public trust. Government officials and employees are accountable to the public. To ensure that the civil servant does not use her position to enrich herself, it is necessary that we put in place a mechanism which will enable the Government to audit the finances of the civil servant.

One such instrument is the signing of a waiver in favor of the Government which will allow the examination of the civil servant's bank accounts and investments in government bonds. This will aid the Government to recover ill gotten funds.

With the passage of this bill, transparency of the financial standing of the civil servant will serve as a deterrent to graft and corruption.

Approval of this bill is earnestly sought.
