Explanatory Note

In “Ina at Anak”, a painting by national treasure Fernando Cueto Amorsolo, Pambansang Artista in Visual Arts for 1972, the mother is depicted “as one who will even go to the point of sacrificing her own life for the sake of her child.” The stunning vista captured the poignant bond between mother and child. That from birth, the mother will painstakingly take care of her beloved infant providing him food, shelter and clothing. From the long hours of labor in the delivery room to the time of his/her education, the mother is there to offer the greatest of affection to her offspring¹

This legislation is submitted as a paean to every Filipino mother.

The country’s maternal mortality rate (MMR) is among the highest in Southeast Asia at 162/100,000 childbirths as compared to Thailand and Malaysia with MMR of 40/100,000 livebirths. In a report of the Department of Health, many of our women die during delivery for lack of access to quality emergency obstetric care (EMOC) particularly in rural and underserved areas. 6 out of 10 Filipinas deliver at home where they are exposed to many dangers.²

This legislation is highlighted by the following points:

1. The local government units are mandated to upgrade and improve devolved health services and medical facilities to provide quality EMOC.
2. The LGUs shall encourage facility-based delivery among all women and shall retain health workers, e.g., medical doctors, nurses, and midwives, who deliver these health services. For the purpose, the local health clinics and health offices as well as the satellite offices of the Department of Health are hereby mandated to be of 24-hour assistance to Filipino mothers.
3. The local government units are empowered to provide and formulate programs that will promote the increase in salaries and incentives of health workers.

Early cognizance of this bill is earnestly sought.
