SENATE
S. No. 1759

EXPLANATORY NOTE

Appraisal right is the right of a dissenting stockholder to demand appraisal and payment of the fair value of his stocks from the corporation. It allows a stockholder who dissents and votes against a proposed corporate action to withdraw from the corporation by demanding payment of the fair value of his shares. It may be exercised by any stockholder whenever a major change in his contract of investment occurs which he does not agree and which the law presumes he did not foresee when he bought his shares.

The Corporation Code, Section 37, on a private corporation's power to extend or shorten its corporate term, provides that a dissenting stockholder may exercise his appraisal right in case of an extension of corporate term. However, Section 81 of the same Code, which enumerates the instances when the appraisal right be exercised, provides that the appraisal right be exercised in both cases of lengthening and shortening the term of corporate existence.

The lengthening and shortening of corporate term both results in a substantial change in a stockholder's contract of investment with a corporation. The corporation's term of existence is a major factor in considering whether to buy shares in a corporate or not. This bill seeks to harmonize Sections 7 and 81 by clearly allowing the appraisal right in both cases of lengthening and shortening the term of corporate existence.*
