FOURTEENTH CONGRESS OF THE REPUBL	IC)
OF THE PHILIPPINES)
First Regular Session)

B M. 4

SENATE S. No. 2107 HECEWED TO:

Introduced by Senator Miriam Defensor Santiago

EXPLANATORY NOTE

Enforced or involuntary disappearance is a sudden and forcible arrest, detention or abduction of a person or group of persons who are actually or allegedly involved in social transformation or In upholding and defending the civil, political, economic, social and cultural rights of the people. It is perpetrated directly or indirectly by agents of the State who refuse to disclose the whereabouts of the victims or to acknowledge the detention with the intention of depriving them protection of the law for a prolonged period of time.

Involuntary disappearance is one of the cruelest forms of human rights violations. It violates not only the right to liberty and security of the person, the right against torture, force, Violence, threat, intimidation, secret detention places, solitary, incommunicado or other forms of similar detention, which are guaranteed by the Constitution, but practically all human rights including the right to life. The victims are deprived of due process of law and are forced to endure unimaginable indignities and atrocities in the hands of the perpetrators.

The State resorts to involuntary disappearance to stifle dissent and to silence political activists. The atrocious offense is practiced in no less that 65 States. In the Philippines, The Families of Victims of Involuntary Disappearance (FIND) has already documented 1,662 out of the 1,871 reported cases of enforced or involuntary disappearance as of March 2004. Of these cases 1,094' are still missing, 327 have surfaced alive and 241 found dead. Eight hundred fifty-five (855) involuntarily disappeared during the Marcos regime, 820 under the Aquino administration, 87 under Ramos, 58 under Estrada and 51 under the Macapagal-Arroyo dispensation. Involuntary disappearance may no longer be rampant but is still unabated. Not a single case has been resolved. No perpetrator has been punished. No victim or his/her family has been indemnified.

The families and relatives of some victims have filed in court 14 cases. In the absence, however, of a law penalizing involuntary disappearance, the cases are lodged as kidnapping, murder, serious illegal detention or a combination of the last two offenses. It is, therefore, urgent to enact a special law defining and penalizing enforced or Involuntary disappearance as a crime distinct from kidnapping, serious illegal detention or murder. Hence, this bill which not only seeks to impose penalties on the perpetrators of enforced or involuntary disappearance but also to provide greater protection from this odious transgression of human rights.

Crimes committed by agents of the State against the very people they have sworn to protect are indeed reprehensible acts that must be punished severely as the people's defenders become their assailants. The people vest the State with vast powers for the protection of the people's rights and the promotion of their welfare. Thus, if the State uses these powers to mastermind and execute wrongful and cruel acts, like enforced or involuntary disappearance that deprive the people of the dignity that makes them human, the State must be held liable both criminally and civilly.

This is a Senate counterpart bill to one filed in the House of Representatives by Rep. Edcel C. Lagman.

SENATE S. No. 2107

Introduced by Senator Miriam Defensor Santiago

1	AN ACT
2	DEFINING AND PENALIZING ENFORCED OR INVOLUNTARY DISAPPEARANCE

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Philippines in Congress assembled:

SECTION 1. Short Title. – This Act shall be known as the "Anti-Enforced or Involuntary Disappearance Act of 2008."

SECTION 2. Declaration of Policy. – The State values the dignity of every human being and guarantees full respect for human rights for which highest priority shall be given to the enactment of measures for the enhancement of the right of the people to human dignity, the prohibition against enforced or involuntary disappearance, the provision for penal and civil sanctions for violations thereof, and compensation and rehabilitation of the victims and their families. Further, no acts of torture, force, violence, threat or intimidation or any act which vitiates the free will shall be employed against the person abducted, arrested, detained, disappeared or otherwise removed from the effective protection of the law.

SECTION 3. Definition of Enforced or Involuntary Disappearance. — For purposes of this Act, enforced or involuntary disappearance shall be deemed committed when a person is deprived of his/her liberty, in whatsoever form for political reason(s) by agents of the State or by private persons or group of persons acting with the authorization, support or acquiescence of the State, followed by an absence of information, or refusal to acknowledge the deprivation of liberty and information, or concealment of the fate or whereabouts of the disappeared person thus placing such person outside the protection of the law.
