Senate Bill No. 666

RECEIVED BY

INTRODUCED BY SEN. JINGGOY EJERCITO ESTRADA

EXPLANATORY NOTE

This bill seeks to allow the unprivileged and homeless citizens in urban and resettlement areas who are actual occupants of government-owned lands dedicated to socialized housing to have the primary right in acquiring the said land.

Presidential Decree No. 1517, the Urban Land Reform Act, was issued by then President Marcos in 1978. The decree adopted as a State policy the liberation of human communities from blight, congestion and hazard, the promotion of their development and modernization, and the optimum use of land as a national resource for public welfare.

In 1992, Congress passed Republic Act No. 7279 or the "Urban Development and Housing Act of 1992." The law lays down as a policy that the State shall undertake a comprehensive and continuing urban development and housing program to uplift the conditions of the underprivileged and homeless citizens in urban areas and resettlement areas by making available to them decent housing at affordable cost. Pursuant to this, all city and municipal governments were mandated to conduct an inventory of all lands and improvements within their respective localities and, in coordination with the National Housing Authority, the Housing and Land Use Regulatory Board, the National Mapping Resource Information Authority, and the Land Management Bureau, identify and acquire lands for socialized housing and resettlement areas. Said lands shall be disposed of to qualified beneficiaries of the program.

Under Republic Act no. 7279, lands for socialized housing are to be acquired through several modes. These modes include the following: (1) community mortgage; (2) land swapping; (3) land assembly or consolidation; (4) land banking; (5) expropriation. Government-owned and foreclosed properties shall be acquired through negotiated purchase. Under the law's implementing rules and regulations, negotiated purchase allows the transmission of property from one person to another by agreement among the parties. In the case of government-owned and foreclosed land, the parties include the actual occupants and the National Housing Authority or the local government units, as the case may be.

While the law gives qualified beneficiaries who are actual occupants of government owned and foreclosed land the right of first refusal. However, nothing precludes the government from bidding out the land and offering it to other qualified beneficiaries. Thus, there have been instances where the homeless and underprivileged were not given priority in owning government-owned lands they actually occupied because these lands were sold to other qualified beneficiaries who could afford to pay more. While it is the intent of the law to uphold transparency and accountability in the disposition of government-owned properties through public bidding, there is a need to balance this with the mandate of the State to make decent housing affordable to the underprivileged and the homeless, especially to the land's actual occupants.

This bill addresses that situation by providing for a mode of acquisition where government-owned land is acquired without public bidding in cases where the actual occupants of the land who are qualified beneficiaries signify their intentions to acquire the land for their own. Only when the actual occupants refuse to exercise such right and cannot afford to pay the valuation set for the land shall it be subjected to public bidding.

In view of the foregoing, the urgent approval of this bill is earnestly sought.
