EXPLANATORY NOTE

In an era of rapid transformation, the Local Government Academy (LGA) needs to adopt structural reforms. It must be more accountable and should be run by committed professionals capable of meeting new challenges. It is the intention of this bill to strengthen the Academy and re-create it as a more autonomous body corporate with more powers, functions, and privileges to the end that its programs will be more innovations and responsive to the needs of its clients. For the next decade there is an optimism that flexibility, dynamism and maturity will enable LGA to rise above the challenges.

As the LGA responds to the proceeds of increasing private and public participation and more demands for decentralization, the inadequacy of local chief executives and functionaries in terms of managerial and technical capability continue to derail local autonomy. The situation is attributed to the absence of the necessary support system bureaucratic structures and decades of statism. Since its creation by virtue of Executive Order 262 and reiterated by RA 6975 the LGA has maintained its status as an attached agency of the government, the Department of Interior and Local Government (DILG). It is charged with the responsibility of improving the capabilities of local government executives and functionaries and the DILG personnel.

With this mandate, the LGA needs a framework for the continuous evolution of its strategic thinking in terms of performing its critical role in local government capability building. It must continuously align its objectives with the changing situation. It must remove barriers to human resource development and standardize training programs to avoid proliferation of trainings and wastage of resources.

Currently, the Academy in its attempt to cope with the fast changing policy and institutional requirements at the local level, the information revolution, technological changes and increasing globalization, finds great difficulty in addressing these demands. The constraint of a meager budget, inadequate manpower, increasing bureaucratic red tape has not maximized its operation as autonomous organization.

Strengthening the LGS and granting it more powers will enable it to take bold and innovative steps in intensifying its capability to a proactive response to the development needs of local governments and human resource development programs of the DILG.

Passage of this bill is therefore earnestly requested.
