

FIFTEENTH CONGRESS OF THE REPUBLIC) OF THE PHILIPPINES)
First Regular Session)

SENATE
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY

10 AUG -3 110 :22

SENATE
S. No. 2315

RECEIVED BY:

Introduced by Senator Miriam Defensor Santiago

EXPLANATORY NOTE

Aggressive behavior in early childhood is the single best predictor of aggression in later life. In the U.S., studies have shown that children who experienced violence as victims or witnesses are at increased risk of becoming violent themselves.

In the US, research has demonstrated that aggression is primarily a learned behavior that develops through observation, imitation, and direct experience. Early childhood offers a critical period for overcoming risk for violent behavior and providing support for pro-social behavior. Primary prevention can be effective. When preschool teachers teach young children interpersonal problem-solving skills and other forms of conflict resolution, children are less likely to demonstrate problem behaviors. Violence prevention programs for very young children yield a multitude of benefits - by providing health and stability to the individual child and the child's family, and by reducing expenditures for medical care, special education, and involvement with the judicial system.

This bill seeks to provide training in violence prevention to professionals and educators who work with children.¹
