S. No. 3097

Introduced by Senator Miriam Defensor Santiago

EXPLANATORY NOTE

Numerous cases of missing pets are reported everyday. Many pets, which have been separated from their owners have remained unfound due to lack of information and assistance.

Losing a pet can be a traumatic and stressful experience not only for the owners, but for the animals, especially ones that have been injured or frightened.

This bill seeks to create the first national pet registry and database for missing pets and found strays. The Registry will tie all pets' pertinent information into a national database. Through registration, shelters, vets, pet organizations and individuals will have the ability to notify the owner immediately should a missing pet end up in their care. Every pet will have an online profile with veterinary / medical records, emergency contacts, tattoos, photos, histories, medical logs, and certifications. On the other hand, the Missing Pets and Found Strays Database shall be equipped with a search engine so that all reports for lost pets can be uploaded and categorized, enabling users to find possible matches. The database will be readily accessible through the internet.

The internet can become a valuable tool in the search for missing pets. Its speed in information dissemination is incomparable. Its capacity to store vast amounts of digital records is an ideal way to manage the volume of files that are anticipated in these cases.

Through this tool, the Bureau of Animal Industry of the Dept. of Agriculture shall be able to assist families reunite with their beloved pets.
