S.B. No. 183

RECEIVED BY: ji

Introduced by Senator Ramon Bong Revilla, Jr.

EXPLANATORY NOTE

Recent studies have found the breakthroughs in the speed, communications capability and storage capacity of information devices have far-reaching and unforeseen effects on families, communities, institutions and democratic processes of a nation. A major obstacle to the general advancement in technology of a developing country is the formulation and creation of optimal preconditions for a successful management and administrative structure through which the people will gain and at the same be cosseted from the new technology.

Section 10, Article XIV of the 1987 Constitution provides that, "Science and technology are essential for national development and progress. The State shall give priority to research and development, invention, innovation, and their utilization; and to science and technology education, training, and services. It shall support indigenous, appropriate, and self-reliant scientific and technological capabilities, and their application to the country's productive systems and national life.

In consonant to this constitutional mandate and due to the fast development of new technologies, it has become essential for the government to provide a regulatory environment.

This bill therefore seeks to reorganize the National Telecommunications Commission (NTC) and give the NTC powers and functions for the agency to deal with the improvements in information and communications technology.

Immediate passage of this bill is highly needed.
