SENATE BILL NO. 217

INTRODUCED BY SENATOR JOSEPH VICTOR G. EJERCITO

EXPLANATORY NOTE

Enshrined in the 1987 Philippine Constitution are State policies of full transparency and accountability in the conduct of all public officials and employees, and of full public disclosure of information vested with public interest. It was no less than the Philippine Constitution, which upheld the people's right to know and be informed about all policies, projects, and programs of government that involve use of taxpayer's money.

As guaranteed by the Supreme Law of the land, our people are the most exuberant in their exercise of the freedoms of speech, of the press, and of peaceable assembly for redress of just grievances. But one other inalienable freedom that the Constitution also guarantees – Freedom of Information – remains just a bill perpetually struck in the legislative mill, hobbled by concerns of the Executive, and mocked by restrictive administrative fiat of the Judiciary, of the House of Representatives, and even the Office of the Ombudsman.

The Freedom of Information Act long promised by the Constitution remains to this day, just a promise. And from the 12th to the present 15th Congress, despite the numerous bills filed and refilled, it seems like we always return to square one, from zero, marching but only in one place, on the Freedom of Information Act.

The present Aquino administration was installed in June 2010 on major summons for the citizens and public officials to trek the path of good governance, transparency and alleviate poverty. In consonance with these reform calls of the present administration, it is more appropriate to enact the Freedom of Information bill.

Citizens need to and must know how public officials exercise their powers and authorities, how they spend public funds, what contracts and agreements they sign and seal on our behalf, what policy issues bother them that must also bother us so we may participate in making decisions.

The right to information is our protection against government abuse, at the same time that it is our power to make government accountable. But our right to information requires a complementing legislation to ensure its clear cut, full and predictable operation.

To carefully ensure that the Freedom of Information may not be prone to abuse, we must undertake necessary adjustments to carefully balance the people's right to information on the one hand, and the interest for reasonable confidentiality and sound administrative practice, on the other.

Thus, with time fast running out, and the long wait of our people be over, the passage of this Bill is earnestly sought.
