Senate Bill No. 549

EXPLANATORY NOTE

Under Article II, Section 18 of the Constitution, "The State affirms labor as a primary social economic force. It shall protect the rights of workers and promote their welfare." It is also provided in Article 19 of the New Civil Code that "Every person must in the exercise of his rights and in the performance of his duties, act with justice, give everyone his due, and observe honesty and good faith." In view of the above-stated provisions, it is a well-settled policy of the State to afford protection to labor and promote the rights of workers, which for the purpose of this bill, refers to a just wage.

A just wage includes the intrinsic right to a full wage in accordance with contract-stipulations between employer and employee, the extent of service rendered by the latter, the criterion of credentials, competence or ability, and deductions as provided by law. However, it is now becoming a prevalent, if not a rampant practice, whether in public or private establishments, for salary-disbursing officers to lend money before the actual payment of salary becomes due, most especially to workers who, in dire need or in cases of emergency, are forced to borrow from the former to be paid when the salary falls due, usually at usurious interests. Given this scenario, workers fall prey to the greed of disbursing officers, the effect of which is detrimental to the well-being of the workers. Hence, there is a need to curb this practice. This bill is designed to address such wrong.

In consideration of the foregoing, support for this bill is earnestly requested.
