EXPLANATORY NOTE

Official statistics showed that over the past six years, economic growth hardly made a dent in poverty incidence in the Philippines, as the percentage of Filipinos living below the poverty line remained practically the same between 2006 and 2012<sup>1</sup>. National Statistical Coordination Board (NSCB) reported that poverty incidence stood at 27.9% in the first semester of 2012 – practically unchanged from the same period in 2009 and 2006, which is 28.6% and 28.8% respectively<sup>2</sup>.

Reports have shown that over half a million school-aged children nationwide have been suffering from severe malnutrition. According to the Department of Education, 562,262 pupils in kindergarten and elementary levels currently enrolled in public schools are considered severely wasted<sup>3</sup>. With Filipino children literally dying from extreme poverty, hunger and malnutrition, the future of the Philippines is clearly in grave peril.

The passage of Republic Act 84253<sup>4</sup> otherwise known as the "Social Reform and Poverty Alleviation Act" is a step towards the right direction. However, considering the fact that the said law is actually focused on social reform and long term development, the National Anti-Poverty Commission (NAPC), which was created as a coordinating body under the law, is apparently not equipped to immediately address the problem.

Indeed, it is not enough that we adopt a long-term strategy to combat child malnutrition and extreme poverty. In the long-run, many of these children will be dead! Hence, there is an imperative necessity for the Government to immediately act on this problem.

This bill aims to provide significant and continuing intervention by Government into this grave problem by providing literally billions of pesos annually to fund school and community-based supplemental feeding programs and related poverty alleviation efforts using the minimum basic needs (MBN) approach among the poorest of the poor communities in the country. It is expected that through this measure, billions of pesos will be generated to help ameliorate, if not totally put a stop, to the prevalence of child malnutrition in the country.

The immediate passage of this bill is, therefore, earnestly sought.
