Senate Bill No. 1630

INTRODUCED BY SEN. JINGGOY EJERCITO ESTRADA

EXPLANATORY NOTE

The Filipinos are among the world's foremost heroes and advocates of freedom. To demonstrate and exemplify that avid regard and concern for human rights, the 1987 Constitution under Section 11 of Article I1 declares "the State values the dignity of every human person and guarantees full respect for human rights". Consistent with this declared policy, it supports under Section 12 of Article III the "compensation to and rehabilitation of victims of torture of similar practices and their families."

Military, police and other law enforcement agencies' operation to suppress rebellion or to pursue and apprehend criminal elements, no matter how cautiously conducted, invariably causes damages upon innocent civilians and non-combatants. Unfortunately, there is no existing government mechanism that compensate for these damages that come in the form of physical and psychological injuries, death and destruction of properties. Hence, the proposed measure seeks to fill in this void in order to prove to the citizenry that the government means them no harm, and that such damages are inevitable consequences of the government's duty to defend itself and protect its people.

Critics may argue that indemnification of this kind should only be practiced by rich countries and not by cash-strapped Third World countries such as the Philippines. This argument is wrong. As justice is universal, rectifying injustices must be universal too, exempting no one - not even on account of poverty.

The immediate passage of this bill is therefore earnestly solicited.
