SENATE

Senate Bill No. 1681

RECEIVED BY. ji

INTRODUCED BY SEN. JINGGOY EJERCITO ESTRADA

EXPLANATORY NOTE

The need for policy research and strategic studies could not be more compelling than at the present time. Domestic and international, political, economic and other developments of profound significance present tremendous challenges to the country. Major technical advances especially in communications, information and transportation have increased interdependence among nations.

While large-scale military confrontation has become more unlikely, competition for resources is likely to develop more keenly. It is expected that the next arena of competition could very well be the Asia-Pacific Region.

In many parts of Asia, outstanding territorial conflicts may fuel many interstate tensions. Meanwhile, some states continue to build vast arsenals of weapons which may bring about another arms race.

Contending claims over the Spratly portion of the West Philippine Sea by several states, including the Philippines, may result in armed confrontation.

Internally, the Philippines is beset by a continuing insurgency. The local communist movement remains a clear and present danger to national security, even as the Moro Islamic Liberation Front (MILF), together with terrorist organizations, like the Abu Sayyaf continues to disturb the political stability of the country.

There is clearly an urgency in conducting scientific and continuing policy research and strategic studies as bases for addressing our fundamental and critical national concerns.

Strategic study work has to be done by a group of select scholar-members who, among other things, shall: (1) conduct strategic research on national and international concerns; (2) formulate various policy options on various national concerns and (3) recommend the appropriate actions to support such policies and strategies. In view of the foregoing considerations early passage of this bill is earnestly sought.
