AN ACT
INSTITUTIONALIZING THE RIGHTS OF GOVERNMENT SERVICE INSURANCE
SYSTEM (GSIS) MEMBERS, PROVIDING THEM ADDITIONAL REPRESENTATION IN THE GSIS BOARD, ENSURING PROMPT PAYMENT OF ALL THEIR BENEFITS
AND FOR OTHER PURPOSES

Explanatory Note

Today, there are approximately 1.4 million government employees in the country. They are the hardworking civil servants whom we engage whenever we avail of services from various government agencies. They serve with honor and competence despite grueling workloads, uncomfortable work conditions and meager salaries.

In recognition of the valuable services rendered by the government workforce, the Government Service Insurance System (GSIS) was established through Republic Act (R.A.) No. 8291, otherwise known as the Government Insurance Act of 1997, to respond to the needs of the growing bureaucracy. Under this law, the GSIS is mandated to insure its members against the occurrence of certain contingencies in exchange of their monthly premium contributions. Indeed, through time, GSIS members and their dependents have relied primarily on the benefits and claims from the GSIS as an additional resource to meet daily needs.

However in the recent past, there have been a number of stories of misery, disappointment and desperation from many GSIS members. There were reported complaints of delays in the receipt of payment for claims, non-updating and non-reconciliation of members' records and contributions, and inefficiency in providing services, among others. These problems in one way or another have caused additional burden to its members.

In order to alleviate the problems encountered by the members of the GSIS, this bill amends certain provisions of R.A. No. 8291 by institutionalizing a Members' Rights which perhaps is the first of its kind in the world as far as government pension systems are concerned. In addition to their rights under existing laws, the GSIS members are granted specific rights such as: a) Right to courteous and responsive service; b) Right to information; c) Right to GSIS benefits; d) Right to expeditious processing of claims, e) Right to be heard; and, f) Special Rights for the elderly.

The bill not only strengthens members' rights but, as an added feature, it also spells out the responsibilities of the agency employers. This provision aims to address inefficiency and negligence of government agencies as employers, in remitting contributions to the GSIS. Under the bill, it is the main responsibility of the agencies to remit employees and employer's contributions to the GSIS within the prescribed time and in the prescribed format. The agencies concerned are also required to promptly produce the documents required to facilitate the processing of a member's claim from GSIS.

The prescriptive period in claiming of benefits is also lifted to allow members or their designated beneficiaries to claim GSIS benefits for an indefinite period.

This bill also grants the Regional Trial Court (RTC) to have concurrent jurisdiction over disputes arising from the grant of benefits provided by the law. Hence, GSIS members will now have an alternative venue aside from the GSIS should they opt to appeal decisions on their claims for benefits.

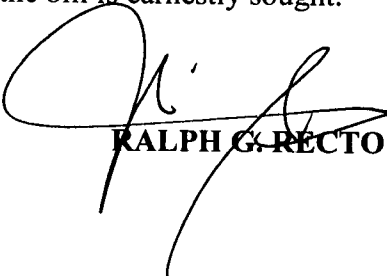

The proposed law likewise provides limitation on foreign investments so that investible funds of the GSIS can be made available in the local market to finance priority programs and projects of the government.

Additional representation for members in the GSIS board is also provided in this bill. The Secretary of Education and Chairman of the Civil Service Commission shall be additional members of the board to further strengthen the representation of teachers who compose approximately 60% of the GSIS membership and to promote the welfare of the civil servants.

Lastly, in order to protect the rights of GSIS members, the bill adds penal provisions for violations of the law.

While this bill is not expected to address all the problems of the GSIS, it is a measure geared towards achieving a healthier and more responsive insurance system that provides the benefits and services that our civil servants rightfully deserve.

In the light of the foregoing, immediate passage of the bill is earnestly sought.
