AN ACT
ADVANCING THE RIGHTS OF STREET CHILDREN BY STRENGTHENING THE BARANGAY COUNCIL FOR THE PROTECTION OF CHILDREN (BCPC) AND ESTABLISHING AN INCENTIVES SYSTEM FOR THE PRIVATE SECTOR ENGAGED IN THE PROMOTION OF THE WELFARE OF STREET CHILDREN, AND FOR OTHER PURPOSES

Explanatory Note

Our Constitution mandates the State to defend the right of children to assistance, including proper care and nutrition, and special protection from all forms of neglect, abuse, cruelty, exploitation and other conditions prejudicial to their development. This provision of our supreme law illustrates the parens patriae concept or the power of the state to act as the parent of any child or individual who is in need of protection.

This constitutional mandate has spawned a number of legislation aimed at shielding our children against most forms of abuse, neglect and exploitation. However, the inadequacy of our laws becomes apparent in the case of street children, which continue to be a large societal blot in our efforts to safeguard the welfare of the youth. Estimates by the Council for the Welfare of Children (CWC) reveal that there are around 250,000 street children in the country¹. The number could be more at present and no single government program seems to address the problem effectively.

It is in this area where the parens patriae concept in which the State acts as parent fails miserably. It is our contention that in this case, if the State alone cannot ensure the welfare of our children, particularly those who roam our streets, the private sector can be tapped to address a seemingly gargantuan social strain. According to ChildHope Asia Foundation, one of the leading NGOs concerned on children welfare and protection, majority of street children still go home to poor communities within a barangay. Thus, this bill aims to strengthen the Barangay Council for the Protection of Children (BCPC)² organized under Presidential Decree (PD) 603 as a preventive approach for the purpose of eliminating the presence of street children in our cities and municipalities.

Aptly entitled the "Street Children Welfare Act of 2016," the bill also provides incentives to private individuals, corporations, non-governmental organizations or entities that offer much-needed facilities or services aimed at providing our street children short- and long-term refuge against the harsh realities of the streets, including donations to such endeavors. It allows these so-called "good Samaritans" to use the amount they allot on such facilities, services or donations as an allowable deduction in their gross income.

We cannot allow the sad plight of our street children to continue. Hence, the immediate passage of this bill is earnestly sought.
