AN ACT
ESTABLISHING THE PHILIPPINE MARINE CORPS, DEFINING ITS POWER AND FUNCTIONS, APPROPRIATING FUNDS THEREFOR, AND FOR OTHER PURPOSES

EXPLANATORY NOTE

The archipelagic makeup of the Philippines necessitates the need for a comprehensive yet rapidly deployable amphibious force primarily mandated to conduct both seaborne and on-shore tactical operations to protect the country's territories, communities, and inhabitants. Duty requires that this group shall be competent in responding to extraordinary exigencies and developing multinational cooperation and engagements to preserve peace and order within the country.

Under the Armed Forces of the Philippines (AFP) General Orders Nr. 319, s. 1950, the Philippine Marine Corps was initially established to extinguish insurgent threats in the post-war decade. Beyond successfully accomplishing their missions, the Philippine Marine Corps remain steadfast to the call of duty being instrumental in improving the welfare of all Filipinos and protecting the stability of the country.

Philippine history is replete with significant campaigns executed by the Philippine Marine Corps: During the 1960s, the Marines spearheaded the conduct of strategic maneuvers against the HUKBALAHAP. In the following decade, the Marines were in most parts of Luzon neutralizing communist-terrorists. While in the 1980s, the group skillfully maintained order despite the country's political turmoil. The Marines also curtailed the lawlessness of extremist groups in Mindanao from 1990s to 2000s. At present, the Philippine Marine Corps are not only challenged by growing criminality, but are also tested by worsening natural disasters that harm the people in the same manner.

The Philippine Marine Corps might be few but they remain proud and always faithful in their sworn honored duty to the country. While the Constitution mandates that there be an Army, an Air Force and a Navy in the AFP, the Philippine Marine Corps, since its establishment, remains an integral part of the nation's psyche—a force in readiness.

Despite the lack of a charter, the Philippine Marines Corps has provided seamless transition of military power between sea and land domains. It is clear that the Marines will be empowered to further perform their duty with the proper legislation to provide such mandate.

Hence, this Bill seeks to provide a Charter that would institutionalize the Philippine Marines Corps—a branch of service distinct, autonomous, and yet complementary to the Army, Air Force and Navy under the AFP—and, in the process, generate an initiative to guarantee peace, safety, and order of the entire Philippines.

In view of the foregoing, immediate passage of this bill is earnestly sought.

SONNY ANGARA
