EXPLANATORY NOTE

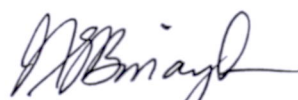

The 1987 Philippine Constitution affirmed the role of women in nation-building and endeavors to ensure the fundamental equality before the law of men and women. Despite major reforms in our laws to implement the State policy, there are still a number of discriminatory provisions under our laws which prejudice against women.

Act 3815, otherwise known as the Revised Penal Code, under Article 333 and Article 334 punishes the crime of adultery and concubinage. Adultery is committed by a married woman who shall have sexual intercourse with a man not her husband. On the other hand, concubinage is committed by the husband under circumstances provided under the law which are difficult to prove (i.e. if the husband shall keep a mistress in the conjugal dwelling, or shall have sexual intercourse, under scandalous circumstances, with a woman who is not his wife, or shall cohabit with her in any other place). The penalty for adultery is remarkably higher than the penalty for concubinage.

These provisions which perpetuate discrimination against women are inconsistent with the policy of our law ensuring equality before the law. Thus, consistent with the declaration in Republic Act No. 9710, or the Magna Carta of Women, provisions of law which engender inequality should be abolished.

There have been, in the past, series of proposals to amend this anti-women provision in the Revised Penal Code. None however have been enacted into law. It is therefore strongly urged that the passing of this bill be granted utmost importance.

In view of the foregoing, the passage of this bill is earnestly recommended.
