COMMITTEE ON BANKS, FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS AND CURRENCIES

SUMMARY OF PROCEEDINGS

I. BACKGROUND:

The country's financial sector remains an important intermediation channel. However, unless critical reforms are undertaken to improve its efficiency and competitiveness, it will remain underdeveloped.

Statistics show that the Philippines lag behind Thailand, Malaysia, Korea and Singapore in terms of savings and size of deposit.

	Gross National Savings/GDP¹, 2004
Philippines	20.9
Malaysia	43.8
Singapore	48.0
Thailand	33.4
Indonesia	25.3
Korea	35.0
Hong Kong	31.6
China	44.7

Public interest in savings instruments outside of the banking sector is low as the Philippine capital market is still in the early stages of development. Domestic credit depends largely on banks' lending and there is little participation in the equity market. In fact, as compared to the selected ASEAN and other selected exchanges shown below, the Philippines showed the least developed stock market.

Exchange	No. of listed companies (as of 2004) ²	Stock Market Importance (Stock Market Value as % of GDP) (2003)
Philippines (PSE)	235	29.23
Jakarta (JSX)	331	22.47
Kuala Lumpur (KLSE)	959	156.04
Singapore (SGX)	633	190.29
Thailand (SET)	463	83.14
Korea (KSE)	683	48.55
Shanghai (SSE)	837	25.50
Taiwan (TSEC)	702	132.54
Tokyo (TSE)	2,306	68.77

Also, the Philippines has the least capitalized equities market as compared to other Asian economies.

	Domestic Market Capitalization (% to GDP), 2004³
Philippines	30.71
Malaysia	176.50
Singapore	222.50

Indonesia	40.16
Korea	64.60
Hong Kong	452.20

Moreover, in contrast to countries with more developed capital markets, the country's pension funds are primarily derived from mandatory schemes such as the GSIS and the SSS. To make it worse, the GSIS and the SSS are plagued with uncertainties. Studies show that the two institutions are suffering from poor financial health resulting in growing funding gaps, deficits and declining surpluses. Some estimates for SSS show that the fund is expected to last until 2015, assuming there are no pension increases. For the social insurance fund of GSIS, it was projected that expenses will exceed revenues by 2042. If not rectified, the pension system problems will eventually translate to a national government bail-out, with serious repercussions on fiscal consolidation efforts.

These are just some of the myriad factors that hamper the growth of the country's financial sector. Several measures, legislative or otherwise, still have to be done to make the country's financial system as competitive as those of other countries.

Although this is not the single answer to the country's problems in the financial sector, the enactment of a law on the Personal Equity Retirement Account (PERA) is envisioned to provide an alternative financial instrument to augment non-bank savings. It will likewise address the need for an alternative pension fund which will encourage the people to save up for their old age. It is intended to be the first step towards pension reform, establishing a multi-pillar retirement income structure.

The enactment of the PERA, however, will not be cost-free to the government. It is estimated that the revenue loss due to the tax benefits under the bill will amount to around P10 billion annually. The estimated loss of revenue from the tax incentive (tax credit) on the PERA contributions is P1.22 billion whereas the estimated loss from tax exemption of the investment income of the PERA is P1.16 to P8.82 billion⁴.

Admittedly, the PERA can lead to short-term revenue losses to the government. However, the foreseen benefits that the PERA will bring to the country's financial system surely outweigh the perceived costs. Moreover, investments in PERA products will generate more tax revenues, in the form of turnover taxes. As firms are encouraged to list in the stock market, government will also earn substantial sums from the IPO tax which is from 1-4% of the gross selling price of offered shares. The IPOs issued during the last 4 years generated some P739 million in taxes. Additionally, 12% VAT is collected on processing, listing and maintenance fees.

II. COMMITTEE ACTION

The bill on the PERA has been pending in the Senate since the Twelfth Congress. The proposal was revived in the Thirteenth Congress with the filing of four bills by Senators Ralph Recto (Senate Bill No. 1343), Ramon Magsaysay III (Senate Bill No. 1747), Edgardo J. Angara (Senate Bill No. 1821) and Mar Roxas (Senate Bill No. 1985).

The PERA bills were heard by the Committee on Banks Financial Institutions and Currencies on January 14, 2005 and October 3, 2005. A Technical Working Group was constituted to thresh out the mechanics of the envisioned PERA.

The TWG, which had six (6) meetings, was composed of the following:

CHAIRMAN:

Deputy Governor Nestor Espenilla,^{of} Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas (BSP)

MEMBERS:

1. Atty. Prudence Kasala – BSP
2. Dir. Ma. Lourdes Recente – Department of Finance (DOF)
3. Mr. Ronnie Buenviaje – OIC, Research and Information Dept., DOF
4. Assistant Commissioner James Roldan – Bureau of Internal Revenue (BIR)
5. Ms. Charadin Bandon - BIR
6. Atty. Francis Lim – President, Philippine Stock Exchange (PSE)
7. Ms. Ma. Fe Dayco – Senior Vice President, Actuarial Group, GSIS
8. Mr. Rizaldy Capulong – Actuarial Department Head, SSS
9. Mr. Romeo Bernardo- Capital Market Development Council (CMDC)/Financial Executives of the Philippines (FINEX)
10. Ms. Noemi Javier – Executive Director, CMDC
11. Mr. Rex Mendoza – Exec. Vice-Pres., PHILAM Group
12. Mr. Efren Cruz – President, Investment Company Association of the Philippines (ICAP)

The Senators who authored the bills were likewise represented.

In drafting the proposed substitute bill, the TWG reviewed all the current PERA bills originating from the Senate, the proposed consolidated PERA bill originating from the House of Representatives during last congress, transcript of stenographic notes taken during the Senate deliberations last Congress, the Individual Retirement Accounts ("IRA") under U.S. jurisdiction and the position of the private sector, in particular that of the CMDC.

III. SUMMARY OF THE BILL

1. State Policy behind the enactment of the PERA bill:

- a. Establishment of supplementary retirement benefits for the working population.

The retirement benefit is especially helpful to SSS pensioners, who receive smaller pensions compared to GSIS pensioners, in achieving a minimum subsistence level during retirement.

- b. Savings mobilization;

PERA is an alternative scheme, voluntary and private in character, designed to supplement the present public pension schemes administered by SSS and GSIS. Investments in PERA products are designed to be locked in on a long-term basis, i.e. up to age fifty-five (55) and held for at least a minimum of five (5) years. This could very well translate to thirty-five (35) years of accumulated savings assuming entry age in the labor force is 20.

- c. Capital market development

The savings that may be generated from the establishment of PERA accounts are long-term and can be ideally invested in the domestic capital market. The underlying investment instruments can be in the form of unit investment trust fund, mutual fund, annuity contract, insurance pension products, pre-need pension plan, shares of stock listed in exchange, exchange-traded bonds or any other investment product or outlet, approved by the appropriate Regulatory Authority.

- d. Long-term fiscal sustainability.

By empowering an individual to manage his retirement benefits, concerns regarding the actuarial fund life and viability of SSS and GSIS will be mitigated.

2. Mechanics:

Under the proposed Substitute bill on PERA,

- a. A contributor may establish a PERA with a maximum annual contribution of P50,000.00. In case of married individual, each spouse shall be entitled to make a maximum annual contribution of P50,000.00. The Secretary of Finance may adjust the amount of annual contribution to reflect the present value of the proposed annual contribution.

For purposes of administrative simplicity, a contributor cannot contribute more than P50,000 to his PERA. The entire PERA account, at different stages, is subject to certain tax incentives, the administration of which will be easier if there will be no mixing of funds not entitled to the incentives.

b. The contributor must be a taxpayer.

A contributor must necessarily be a taxpayer in order to avail of the tax privileges of the PERA. Moreover, the TWG hopes to capture more taxpayers into the system with the introduction of these tax incentives.

c. The annual contribution made shall be entitled to a tax credit of 5%.

Any contributions in excess of the maximum annual contribution shall not be entitled to a tax credit.

According to the BIR, the tax credit scheme is administratively feasible.

A tax credit was preferred, in lieu of a tax deduction, in order to level the impact of the tax privilege given to the contributors. A tax deduction would give higher tax benefits to the higher income group considering that they belong to a higher tax bracket. The tax impact of a deduction would depend on the tax bracket of the taxpayer.

d. The contributor may establish a maximum of 5 PERA, at any one time with only one administrator.

A contributor must have the flexibility to establish more than one PERA in order to have a wider choice of investment products and to spread his risk. As a new player in the market, he should be able to test the different product in the market. However, in order to simplify and facilitate the grant of tax incentives, he should maintain all his PERA with only one administrator, with the option of changing said administrator. These features would enable the contributor to better control his investments, without sacrificing administrative simplicity.

e. A PERA must be under an Administrator.

The administrator plays an important role in educating the contributor with respect to the choice, risk and rewards of his investments and in facilitating the grant of tax incentives. An administrator can also pool the investments in PERA in order to lower the administrative costs and get higher returns on the investment. Under the proposed substitute bill, the Administrator must necessarily be a regulated entity (either by the BSP, IC or SEC) to ensure that PERA contributions are invested in accordance with the prudential guidelines set by the Regulatory Authorities. The Administrator must be pre-qualified by its respective regulatory authority and accredited by the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

f. A PERA may be constituted under either an agency or trust arrangement.

In case of an agency arrangement, the contributor retains legal title to his investments. On the other hand, the contributor retains only beneficial title to his investments in case of a trust arrangement. The advantage of a trust arrangement, however, is the pooling of funds in order to get higher returns on the individual investments.

g. PERA investment products must be pre-qualified by the Regulatory Authorities.

Considering the level of contributor's financial sophistication, the investment products offered under the PERA must be pre-approved by the Regulatory Authorities.

h. Private employers may contribute to its employee's PERA to the extent of the amount allowable to the contributor.

The employer contribution should be in addition to the mandatory SSS contribution and retirement pay under the Labor Code of the Philippines. The employer's contribution to the PERA shall be treated as part of the employee's compensation for tax purposes.

i. The assets under PERA shall be kept separate from the other assets of an Administrator/Custodian.

The Committee adopted the provision of SB No. 1747 regarding the separation of the PERA assets from that of the Administrator/Custodian. Accordingly, the PERA assets shall not be part of the general assets of the Administrator/Custodian for purposes of insolvency.

j. All income earned by PERA investment products are tax exempt.

Under current tax laws⁵, only long term deposits or investment (with a maturity period of not less than 5 years and issued by banks only) in the form of savings, common or individual trust funds, deposit substitutes, investment management accounts and other investments evidenced by certificates in such form prescribed by the BSP shall be exempt from the 20% final tax.

Under the proposed provision, even other instruments offered by other institutions under the PERA shall likewise be entitled to the exemption. This would level the tax incentives given to the same products offered by different institutions.

k. All distributions from the PERA are tax-exempt.

The contributor should likewise be granted a tax incentive upon his receipt of the PERA benefits considering the required investment period. Otherwise, the tax incentives offered under the bill would not be sufficient to entice a contributor to tie-up his money for a considerable period of time.

However, distribution to the contributor is limited to only two instances: (a) when the contributor reaches 55 years old, provided that the contributor has made contributions to the PERA for at least 5 years; and (b) upon the death of the contributor, irrespective of the age of the contributor at the time of his death.

In case of the earlier instance mentioned, the distribution shall be made in either lump sum or pension for a definite period or lifetime pension, the choice of which shall be at the option of the contributor. The contributor, however, has the option to continue on with the account.

In case of the latter instance, there shall be complete distribution of the benefits.

l. Distributions may not be made from the PERA until the contributor reaches the age of 55 and his contributions have been made for at least 5 years.

In order to ensure that contributions stay in the system on a long-term basis and reinforce the objective of making the PERA as a retirement pension fund, any withdrawal shall be subject to an early withdrawal penalty. This will temper the tax incentives given to PERA investment products.

However, there will be no early withdrawal penalty for withdrawals made for the following purposes:

- a). For payment of accident or illness-related hospitalization in excess of 30 days; and
- b). For payment to a contributor who has been subsequently rendered permanently totally disabled as defined under the Employees Compensation Law, Social Security Law and Government Service Insurance System Law.

m. Rules and regulations on PERA, with the exception of the subject matter on tax incentives, shall be promulgated by the DOF and Regulatory Authorities, with BSP as lead agency. The BIR will be tasked to formulate rules and regulations on the grant of tax incentives.

The TWG thought it would be better not to create a new entity to supervise or oversee the implementation of this bill. Instead, a consortium of the Regulatory Authorities and the DOF will formulate the rules and regulations to govern the administration of the PERA. This consortium, however, would not have a separate legal personality. Thus, the rules and regulations shall be promulgated individually by the Regulatory Authorities to its respective supervised or regulated entities. The consortium was resorted to in order to ensure uniformity of rules and regulations over the different industries involved.
