EXPLANATORY NOTE

Television has become a tremendous influence on value formation especially among children. The programs that children of tender age watch on television leave lasting imprints on their impressionable minds. If repeatedly exposed to these programs, children tend to imbue, imitate and nurture the values being projected and their young minds would consider them as normal or proper.

This bill seeks therefore to regulate the showing of television advertisements featuring sex and/or violence by restricting their viewing at times when children of formative years most likely would be watching.

Support for this bill is earnestly requested.

RAMON BONG REVILLA, JR.
