S.B. No. 2542

Introduced by Senator RAMON BONG REVILLA, JR.

EXPLANATORY NOTE

Under the Family Code, illegitimate children are granted the right to use their father's surname with the intention of removing, or at least diminishing, the stigma and shame which accompanies illegitimacy.

This bill aims to emphasize the primordial importance of the role of mothers when it comes to the surname of their illegitimate children. The proposed amendment, in recognition of the fact that mothers have the sole parental authority over their illegitimate children, mandates that mothers should give express prior consent to the use of the father's surname. There is a danger that a father might use this right as leverage over the mother, either to avoid obligations or to impose unreasonable demands, and as a result undermine the parental authority of a mother over her illegitimate child.

Furthermore, the amendment seeks to negate the presumption that every mother is willing to assent to the use of the father's surname and that such use is always for the best interest of the child. Bearing in mind the welfare of the illegitimate child, there may be instances where the mother strongly believes that her son or daughter's well-being would be better protected if the surname of the father will not be used.

In this light, approval of this bill is highly recommended.
