EXPLANATORY NOTE

The Constitution, Article XV, Section 3, paragraph 2 provides that the State shall defend:

“The right of children to assistance, including proper care and nutrition, and special protection from all forms of neglect, abuse, cruelty, exploitation and other conditions prejudicial to their development.”

Baby abandonment is an issue that affects and is affected by teenagers, parents, teachers, schools, churches, community organizations, and all of the social services that exist to protect parents and children, including health care, child welfare, mental health care, and welfare

Not only is there a lack of information on the number of babies abandoned across the country, but experts also lack information on the characteristics and motivations of parents who abandon their babies. While individual cases involving newborn babies abandoned by their mothers in public places, receives press attention, no one knows how frequently such events occur.

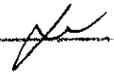

This bill seeks to establish a task force within the Department of Social and Welfare Development (DSWD) to gather information about, study, and report to the congress regarding, incidents of abandonment of infant children.
